

Heath Brown – Professional Profile Growth Mindset Institute - 2019

Heath is an established innovation leader in the Australian market, with experience transforming businesses across an array of industries and geographies. His experience spans across all parts of the global innovation eco-system – from mentoring domestic start-ups, to co-creating innovation with government, partnering with academics in R&D, engaging with investors, and advising large corporates and their management teams on their innovation agenda.

Heath's lifetime passion in both corporate world and sporting arena is in high performance and human potential at an individual level, more recently specialising in what it takes to shape, change, move and embed the right culture for teams of people to thrive. Heath spent much of his career with dual leadership roles – straddling an international sports coaching career alongside his various executive level corporate leadership role. He was drawn to the 'mindset movement' after seeing how the Institutes programs impact on personal and professional lives, growth and performance in these environments. Now within the Institute, he is supporting its reach into the lives of corporate workforces and sporting systems across the world – driven by the impact he has seen it have on re-building, resetting or refreshing careers, relationships, team performance outcomes and team / organisational cultures.